Magic sends her back through time...to the rogue she's trying to avoid.

On the verge of divorcing, Jana Edwards wishes to go back six years, before she impulsively married a man she hardly knew. But when an heirloom pendant grants her wish, she's isolated with the same charming rogue, who's using another name. What's he up to, and why is she falling in love again with the husband to whom she's a stranger?

Jana knows Drake Edwards—intimately—but he has no idea who she is. And no matter how hard she wishes, her pendant refuses to send her home to the future. Maybe that's because Drake is more than he seems.

Jacqueline Diamond has sold 100 novels, including romantic comedy, romantic suspense, fantasy, mystery and Regency historical romance, to a range of publishers. A two-time finalist for the Rita Award, Jackie received a Career Achievement Award from Romantic Times and is a former reporter and TV columnist for the Associated Press. I really loved this book. Jacqueline Diamond did a wonderful job in developing a story that really had me cheering for the characters. The ending had a very unpredictable twist that I didn't see coming, but I loved it. This is one of those books that I can definitely recommend that you take the time to read.
